The easier way is to do what Jesse Livermore did and that is to forget about picking the turns. Don't even think about looking for the tops or the bottoms. As Jesse Livermore says, the first and the last eighth are the most expensive in the world. It is far easier to wait for a stock to turn and then catch it as it is already going up.

25 Jesse Livermore Trading Rules: Ultimate Guide

In late 1939, Livermore's son, Jesse Jr., suggested to his father that he write a book about trading. The book, How To Trade In Stocks, was published by Duell, Sloan and Pearce in March 1940. The book did not sell well as World War II was underway and the general interest in the stock market was low. His investment methods were controversial at the time, and the book received mixed reviews upon publication.
