Moonpie is a nature-inspired pattern from tangler Joan Delony of St. Augustine, Florida, and it's her first on the site. Joan writes that she's scheduled to become a CZT later this year. She describes how her tangle pattern came about: "One day, walking on the beach, there were hundreds of these jellyfish washed up onto the shore. I found the inner pink markings were interesting.

I suggest placing the initial tiny circles very randomly, some close together, some far apart. Then three rings around each one. Add more tiny circles and Auras, and the occasional leaf shape with inner Auras. Keep adding circles and leaves until you've used all the space. Don't forget to shade at the end!
